Dear Mr. Miller:

Mr. Helms has asked me to reply to your letter of 31 October concerning your interest in using some of the photographs appearing in our Atlas of the People's Republic of China.

The photographs were reproduced from various open publications from the People's Republic of China. The original clippings are no longer available. The Atlas reproducibles have been turned over to The Public Printer for the public edition now on sale through the Superintendent of Documents. There could be no objection if you were to reproduce photographs from the Atlas for use in your New Standard Encyclopedia.

Sincerely yours,

Mr. Richard Helms, Director
CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE AGENCY
Washington, D.C. 20505

Dear Mr. Helms:

We are greatly expanding the CHINA article in our New Standard Encyclopedia, and adding many new illustrations to the layout.

Recently your office sent us a copy of "Peoples Republic of China Atlas," published this year by Central Intelligence Agency. We wonder whether any of the fine photographs appearing in this Atlas could be released for use in our encyclopedia, a 14 volume set of books for use in homes, schools, and libraries. The use of the photos would be to illustrate the CHINA article (strictly editorial).

We would greatly appreciate it if you would advise us whether your department could furnish us with glossy prints on several of the photos appearing in your China Atlas. (We would, of course, print any designated credit line.)

Sincerely yours,

Ralph W. Miller
